MISSOULA--

A nighttime extension course entitled "Workshop in Music Education," taught by Kathy Hosea, a music specialist in Missoula School District No. 1, will be offered in Missoula during winter quarter by the University of Montana Center for Continuing Education and Summer Programs (CCESP).

The course is being offered for three graduate or undergraduate credits by the CCESP. The class will meet from 7-10 p.m. Mondays from Jan. 17-March 22. Classes will be held in the Missoula School District No. 1 Administration Building, 215 South 6th St. West.

The course is a workshop dealing with the "Manhattanville Music Curriculum" for elementary school music specialists and classroom teachers who have very strong musical backgrounds.

According to Hosea, the Manhattanville music concept was established several years ago in New York when music educators in the Manhattan area, including faculty from the Manhattan School of Music, recognized a need for children to be more active in music programs by writing their own music, exploring various sounds and making their own musical instruments from a variety of materials.

Hosea, who earned her bachelor of arts degree from the University of California, Long Beach in 1963, is expecting to complete the master of music education degree in the summer of 1976 at the University of Washington, Seattle. Her background includes 11 years of teaching in public schools.

All UM extension courses are open to residents of Missoula and vicinity.

For more information on extension course offerings, contact Cinda Purdy, administrative assistant, CCESP, room 107 of Main Hall, University of Montana, Missoula, Mont. 59801, or phone 243-2900.
